

September 2013

This is our 60th year in business! Looking back over the years, there have been many people who added to our success and we are thankful for each and every contribution. Our customers, employees, and vendors have supported Briteline and helped us grow strong.

The world has changed so much since we first started. As a post-war emerging material, aluminum was accepted around the world for its lightness, versatility in design, and its ability to be infinitely recycled. Who would have thought in the 1950's that we would be extruding miniature LED light fixtures or heat sinks for computers in 2013? Our location near the port of Charleston helped us develop export business, shipping brite dip anodized shower door extrusions worldwide. And to this day, we still enjoy making small trim shapes that got us started 60 years ago.

One of the strengths of our company is we have three generations of the Kabine family working hard to preserve the Briteline reputation for quality and customer service. We recognize and embrace change at every level, which keeps us fresh and improving everyday.

Here's to 60 more!

Sincerely,

Kenneth H. Kabine
President
